BENTLEYVILLE SUFFERING FROM AN EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID FEVER

Red Cross and State Are Assisting Local Authorities to Fight Disease

OUTBREAK DUE TO BAD WATER

The Washington County Chapter of Red Cross have joined with the state and Bentleyville authorities in an effort to prevent an even more serious outbreak of typhoid fever in that borough, which has resulted in one death and the development of seventeen other pronounced cases.

The victim of the disease was Herbert Hertzog, Jr., aged 11 years, son of Herbert H. Hertzog, cashier of the Farmers and Miners National Bank of Bentleyville. The death of the boy occurred on Friday. There are four other children in the Hertzog home, but none of them are ill. The funeral of the boy was held Sunday afternoon, with interment in Monongahela cemetery.

Investigation of conditions at Bentleyville by Dr. E. M. Hazlett of Washington, representing the state medical department resulted in the discovery that the water in a spring used by a large number of families is polluted. Of the 17 cases of the disease, 14 are in homes securing water from it. The spring has been used for years.

Telegraphing the results of his investigations to Harrisburg, Dr. Hazlett was informed by a return message from the medical department that a sanitary engineer would come to Bentleyville at once to co-operate with the authorities of the town in remedying conditions.

Care of those suffering from the disease has been turned over to the Washington County Chapter of the American Red Cross. To assist in the work there Miss Roth of the Allegheny County Chapter has been secured and went on duty there today under Burgess Hetherington, chairman of the auxiliary at Bentleyville. Laura Scaffer, community nurse at Washington is assisting.

Water in the suspected spring was tested by two Washington chemists. They found it to contain a remarkably high percentage of typhoid germs. Other water in Bentleyville was found to be bad and the streams polluted.

Borough officials and coal companies in Bentleyville are co-operating with the state medical authorities in an effort to check the outbreak of the disease and improve existing conditions.

At the Charleroi ball park last Saturday evening, in the boxing contests, Joe Larue k. o'd Young Corning of Canton, Ohio; Latchem shaded Legso, while "Bricker" Ryan defeated Lou Beddell of Pittsburgh. Leclair and Ward fought a draw.

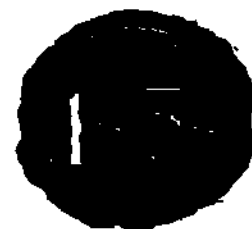

The Ladies Auxiliary of the A. O. H. will meet at the home of Mrs. Mary O'Connor at 7:30 this evening. Mrs. Moussiaux, Pres.

Charleroi Wins Opener From Connellsville Team

Saturday afternoon at Connellsville the Charleroi High school football team easily defeated the Connellsville High school representatives. The supremacy of the Charleroi team was apparent from the very first, and though the Connellsville team put up a game fight, they were at no time dangerous. In fact, they made only two first downs during the entire game. The weather was better suited for a field and track meet than a football game, and the C. H. S. players were much fatigued at the close of the contest.

No doubt it may occur to many people that the final score was small. The reason for the small score was that the coach perceived from the very beginning that his charges were the superiors of the Connellsville team, so he ordered them to play a defensive game. He did this in order to strengthen their defense play and to reduce the chances of any of the men being injured. However, the Charleroi team was deprived of an additional touchdown when the head linesman, who was one of the timekeepers, called time for the quarter too early. The Charleroi team was only a few yards from their opponents' goal line and were about to put the final play into action when the timer called the quarter. Prof. Daniels, who was the other timer, argued in vain. However, the Charleroi team accepted the decision, feeling that while the timer may have been mistaken, they were willing to give him the benefits of any doubts in the matter.

The lone touchdown occurred in the third quarter. Webster caught a forward pass and ran fifteen yards before he was downed. This play brought Charleroi to within a yard of the Connellsville goal line, and then Webster plunged through for a goal.

The entire Charleroi team played a wonderful game and their supporters are more than pleased at the fine start they have made. Even the most pessimistic are predicting an exceedingly successful season. The line-up: Charleroi—6 Connellsville—0

The treatment accorded the Charleroi team by the members of the Connellsville team and the spectators was fine, and the locals are more than pleased with the manner in which they were received.

Next Saturday the local team will play the California Normal at the local ball grounds and the management is preparing for the largest crowd that has ever attended an opening game of football.

MINE CAR ARGUMENT TO BE HELD SHORTLY

Arrangements will be made by the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania within a few days for hearing the argument in the wagon loading car controversy, in which an extended hearing was held last Wednesday at Harrisburg. A preliminary report will be submitted to the commission today. Members of the commission have expressed themselves as desirous of hearing argument on the questions which have arisen, especially in regard to the Interstate Commerce Commission ruling.

The wagon-loading case has attracted considerable attention at the offices of the commission, as numerous letters have been received on the subject from men interested in coal mining in western counties and the testimony given furnishes the most complete statement of conditions the commission has been able to contain.

SPECIAL FROM WASHINGTON FOR HARDING MEETING AT WHEELING

BODY OF OLIVE THOMAS REACHES NEW YORK

The body of Olive Thomas, motion picture star, former Charleroi girl, who died in Paris following the taking of poison tablets by mistake on Saturday arrived in New York on the steamship Mauretania, and was taken to St. Thomas Episcopal church. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Ernest Stires, rector of the church.

JURY EXONERATES MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

A rehearing of the Coroner's inquest, which inquired into the death of Daniel Pacek, who was run over by a truck at Cokeburg Junction on the 11th day of September, and who died later in the Monongahela hospital was held Friday evening at Bentleyville. In the original verdict the hospital authorities were censured for alleged neglect, which they denied and demanded that the hearing be reopened to give them an opportunity to present evidence.

At the second hearing the hospital presented the superintendent, Miss McWilliams, Drs. Bailey, Stewart and Beck, who testified as to the condition of the boy when he reached the hospital and to the treatment he received. It was testified that the physician asked for was not obtainable at the time, but that Drs. Bailey and Beck, who were present, gave attention to the boy within fifteen minutes after his arrival. It developed during the re-hearing that the father of the boy had become confused as to the time, having testified that his son received no attention until several hours after his arrival. The jury exonerated the hospital.

NEW RUNNING TIME OF PASSENGER TRAINS

Passenger trains on the Monongahela Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad went on a new schedule Sunday morning with the change of time from daylight saving back to Eastern standard. The changes made in the time of arrival and departure of trains from the local station were very slight, but they are of sufficient importance that all patrons should know what they are.

North bound trains leave Charleroi at 5:40, 7:01, 9:03, and 10:24 a. m.; 12:46, 2:48, 4:10, 5:06, 7:05, 9:21 p. m. Sunday trains, 6:50, 9:19, 10:13 a. m.; 2:40, 5:39, 7:05 and 9:16 p. m.

Many Republicans From Washington County Expect to Attend

WOMEN WILL JOIN PILGRIMAGE

It is expected that hundreds of Washington county Republicans will attend the Harding meeting, to be held in Wheeling Tuesday afternoon. In response to a large number of requests the Washington county Republican county committee has made arrangements for a special train which will leave the county seat over the B. & O. Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock. The train will make a number of stops between Washington and Wheeling in order to accommodate those of other towns who may wish to attend the meeting.

A special invitation has been extended to women by Chairman Carothers to join the party, as seats will be reserved for them on the train. It is expected that a large number of the new voters will take advantage of the opportunity to hear the Republican Presidential candidate.

Senators Harding will speak in the Auditorium at Wheeling between 8 and 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening and Chairman Carothers exercised. It was testified that the physician asked for was not obtainable at the time, but that Drs. Bailey and Beck, who were present, gave attention to the boy within fifteen minutes after his arrival. It developed during the re-hearing that the father of the boy had become confused as to the time, having testified that his son received no attention until several hours after his arrival. The jury exonerated the hospital.

Senator Harding's appearance at Wheeling will be the signal for a rousing demonstration on the part of Republicans throughout the western part of Pennsylvania. The meeting will be featured by the American Republican club of Pittsburgh, which will go to the rail city in the afternoon by a special train to take part in the demonstration. Similar delegations are expected from many points in the three states adjacent to Wheeling, and Washington county will be well represented.

Mrs. Mary O'Connor At her home, 310 1-2 Sixth street, Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock, occurred the death of Mrs. Mary O'Connor, in the 62nd year of her age. Funeral services Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, with Solemn Requiem High Mass in St. Jerome's church; interment in Calvary cemetery, Coal Centre.

A CRUEL DILEMMA.

Were ever the subscribers of a newspaper placed in a more delicate position than that now occupied by the faithful readers of the London Herald? The Socialist journal admits that it has received a large consignment of gold from the Bolshevik treasury in Russia and asks its readers whether it ought to accept and use the money, explaining that if it does not do so the subscription price will have to go up. Shall Englishmen pay more for their paper or consent to Russian financing of Bolshevik propaganda in England? Cruel dilemma! The outside public will be less interested to learn the decision of the sorely tried readers of the Herald than to know why the Bolshevik subsidy has been made public.

There is nothing mysterious about the subsidy itself. In despoiling the rich old Russian churches the Bolsheviks secured a great pile of gold, but the supply is not unlimited and they would hardly have sent "a large consignment" to the Herald unless war is in rather desperate need of help. The unfavorable report of the British Socialists who went to Russia must have given Bolshevism a pretty black eye in England, even among the radicals themselves. Perhaps this explains why the London Herald confessed to the truth of the report of its receipt of Bolshevik money and asked the advice of its readers, not wishing to bear the whole responsibility of employing such funds in a cause largely fallen into disrepute even in radical and Socialistic circles.

GOVERNMENT SPYING.

According to the Sun and New York Herald, the United States government has built up secret police and investigation organizations "that shame the efforts of the old European monarchies," and at a cost of $50,000,000 a year; there is scarcely "a community throughout this land of the free that has not at least one Government agent spying upon or checking up the actions of its citizens."

The reference is not merely to the vast effort and great cost in connection with the enforcement of prohibition. There are secret policemen to prevent customs smuggling and to trail counterfeiters. There are national bank examiners whom the Sun describes as "a mighty and arbitrary police force." Internal revenue agents "pry deeply into the books of corporations," and the treasury spends three-quarters of a million a year "for the restriction of the sale and use of opium and other narcotics." No less than three hundred inspectors work to hunt down violators of the postal laws. The Department of Agriculture has a large corps of inspectors working to prevent the sale of spoiled or contaminated food. The Interstate Commerce Commission employs inspectors of safety appliances and rolling stock. There is a steamboat inspection to prevent 2000 people being crowded upon excursion boats with a capacity for 800. And so on.

Much of this, if not quite all of it, is desirable and necessary, although there is doubtless an abnormal volume of policing and an unusual number of men employed—a manifest result of war conditions.

AMERICAN A PARADISE.

America must look like a paradise to the deported undesirables who are now breaking stone on the railroads of Russia and doing more hard work than ever before in their restless lives. Their punishment ought to be a lesson and a warning to the mischief makers of alien birth still under our flag who would tear down what our fathers have built up through sacrifice and suffering.

It is interesting to observe the great flood of immigration now rolling toward our shores from the lands beyond the seas. These immigrants have seen the beacon light of America and old and young are crowding the steamers westward bound. Among these immigrants are thousands who went to Europe at the outbreak of the war and after the armistice. They have at last discovered that this is the land of opportunity.

The 8 per cent $100,000,000 French loan negotiated in New York was oversubscribed by many millions in an hour. No wonder—at 8 per cent and in view of the fact that protection from Germany is all that thrifty France needs in order to be perfectly good for any obligation undertaken.

In the three-quarters of a century between 1791 and 1865 only two amendments were added to the Federal Constitution. Of late we have added one almost every year, and if all the demands for new ones are to be met we are likely to find ourselves voting another about every Tuesday and Friday.

Bureau's Good Work.

The bureau of American ethnology, a vast extensive work, is preserving such of value concerning the Indian tribes of North America—not only their language and customs, but also their labitations and other material remains. The annual report is enriched every year with the results of various investigations among the Indians, giving them an interest, not only to scientists, but also to the average man interested in the story of this once powerful race, which is rapidly disappearing through being absorbed into the other races.

Inventor of the Income Tax.

The real inventor of our modern income tax was one of those unassuming dons of Oriel college, at whom it has long been the custom to scoff for being "children" in financial affairs. This unpopular impost was suggested to Pitt by Dr. Henry Locke, a fellow of Oriel and professor of modern history at Oxford, who afterward constantly assisted Van-der-Plaats with the budget during that statesman's long tenure of the chancellorship of the exchequer.—London Times.

Wonderful Scales.

What is claimed to be the smallest balance of precision used for important work is that of the United States bureau of standards, a little more than a foot tall in its class case. It takes loads up to two grams, and is accurate to one-thousandth of a milligram, or about .000,001 of a gram. It will weigh the ink of a signature. The case is dust-proof, and to avoid influence of the weigher's body heat the weights on the scale may be manipulated by a long rod from another room.

Good Advice.

"Crosby," the veteran correspondent of the Downs News, gives this bit of free medical advice to boys and girls who are troubled with sore lips: "When I was a boy I always had sore lips. One day an old woman told me to turn my bread butter side down when I ate—every bite I ate for three weeks. I followed her advice, and I have never had a sore lip from that day to this. It doesn't cost a penny for this drug."

Class by Themselves.

Stanley is one of a large family. Besides numerous sisters and brothers, there are aunts and uncles, and many cousins. The only young people, however, are those in his immediate neighborhood. At Thanksgiving dinner Stanley gazed solemnly at the table for a while and then announced oracularly: "My mother and the cat seem to be the only people in this whole family that have any children."

The After Years.

The early months of marriage bring with them a new experience of life, which there are excitement and change of outlook, wonderful ambitions, and new codes and habits for the man and woman. The emotional reaction the extremes of feeling—happiness and despair, hope and disappointment, mingle in confusion.

Great Men Accusers of Dreams.
Almost all the great characters of Herodotus believed that dreams were of supernatural origin. Kings resigned their scepters, Cambyse assassinated his brother, priests attained great powers as commanders, cities which had been destroyed were restored by men who changed their plans and performed these acts because warned, as they supposed, in dreams, and with the invasion of Greece by Xerxes such night visions had much to do.

Odd Wedding Arrangements.

A young professor of physical culture married a beautiful and athletic pupil of his in the suburbs of Paris. The couple appeared before the mayor in tennis costume, and after the ceremony the wedding party sat down to breakfast on the banks of the Seine. Hardly was the coffee finished than, on a given signal, the whole party retired and reappeared in bathing costume. Later the couple started on a bicycle tour for a honeymoon.

Different Thermometric Scales.

The scale employed by a thermometer is indicated by one of the initial letters, F., C., R., or by the name, Fahrenheit, Centigrade, Reaumur. The degrees of one thermometric scale are readily converted into those of another. Following is their relationship: 180 degrees F. equals 100 degrees C., equals 80 degrees R. Therefore 1 degree F. equals five-ninths of a degree C., equals four-ninths of a degree R.

Mischievous Maggie.

A tame magpie was once observed to be gathering some pebbles in the garden, and solemnly dropping them in a deep hole which had been made to receive a post. As each stone dropped the magpie gave a triumphant chuckle, and searched for another stone. Examination showed that a road was at the bottom of the hole, which can only point to the fact that the bird was stoning for amusement.

Tests of a Good Thermometer.

In order to ascertain whether a thermometer is correct or not, it is first plunged into melting ice and then into boiling water; the level of the mercury should indicate upon the scale exactly 32 degrees and 212 degrees Fahrenheit. When inverted the mercury should fall with a sudden click and fill the tube, thus showing the perfect exclusion of air.

Variety in Breads.

Variety in breads is more important when the lunch must be carried than at other meals because of the danger of monotony. Wheat bread, whole-wheat bread, corn, rye, or oatmeal breads; nut, raisin, and date breads, beaten biscuit, rolls, crisp baking powder biscuit, or soda biscuit, and toast, zwieback and crackers may be used in turn to give variety.

Style.

No chains of adjectives in linked harshness long drawn out; no digressions thrown in as parentheses; but crystalline definiteness and clearness, fine and varied rhythm, and all that delicate decision, all those felicities of word and cadence, which belong to the highest order of prose.—George Eliot.

Steel Pen Industry Holds Own.

In spite of the increase in the use of fountain pens there is still an immense consumption of the old-fashioned steel pens. Every day of the year, according to estimate about four tons of best steel are used in the pen factories and each ton makes a million and a half pens.

World's Highest Dam.

The highest dam in the world is planned for the Sutlej river in northern India, 40 miles above Rajp. The wall will be thrown across a deep gorge, more than 1,000 feet wide. The dam will be 305 feet high.

Awaits Reclamation.

The southern swamp lands have grown, rather than diminished, in area since the Civil war, because of the decay of rice growing. Many old rice fields have now fallen under the dominion of the swamp. But the bulk of this swamp country has always been wild although the adjacent uplands have been cultivated since colonial days. The swamps have always been a region of romance and legend. They have sheltered pirates and smugglers, panthers and bears and strange wild animals from foreign lands escaped off stranded vessels. No private citizen or organization has ever had the strength or courage to try to conquer them. Here and there a Gent has been made in the edge—nothing more. The placing of these wild lands under the rule of the plow, like the conquest of the western desert, is a task for the whole strength of the nation.

Mystical "Forty."

The Children of Israel were in the wilderness forty years, and they sent spies into the Promised Land for forty days in advance of their own going. Moses was in the Mount of the Law forty days. Isaac was forty years old when he was married, and so was Ezra. Eli was judge of Israel for forty years. Goliath defied the army of Israel forty days before David killed him. Solomon reigned forty years. Elijah fled forty days, from Mount Carmel to Mount Horeb. Jonah gave the city of Nineveh forty days' warning of its impending destruction. Jesus fasted forty days, and appeared to his disciples at intervals for forty days after his resurrection. St. Paul five times received forty strokes with the scourges.

Ornithological Delights.

In all excursions to the woods or to the shore, the student of ornithology has a certain advantage over his companions. He has one more resource, one more avenue of delight. He, indeed, kills two birds with one stone, and sometimes three. If others wander, he can never go out of his way. His game is everywhere. The cawing of a crow makes him feel at home, while a new note of a new song draws all care. Audubon, on the desolate coast of Labrador, is happier than any king ever was; and on shipboard is nearly cured of his seasickness when a new gull appears in sight. One must taste it to understand or appreciate its fascination.—John Burroughs.

Tea Made Harmful.

Tea, "the cup that cheers but does not inebriate," must in fact also be reckoned among the very serious and deleterious intoxicants, though of course only when grossly misused. In Ireland especially, and also in the United States, there are many persons addicted to the excessive drinking of tea which is not brewed as it should be, but is permitted to steep and soak for hours and even for days, until some very harmful ingredients are extracted from the leaves, the effects of which upon the nerves and brain are in the end disastrous. There are thousands of occupants of insane asylums whose minds were wrecked by such indulgence.—Exchange.

Island in Uphill Fight.

Urk is a small speck of an island that lies in the middle of the Zuyder zee. It is old—so old that it bitterly resents the sea as a newcomer. While the Zuyder zee advances, Urk stubbornly barricades itself with dykes and fights for its existence. For hundreds of years Urk has been on the defensive, with the Zuyder zee steadily gaining ground. For a while the sea was satisfied merely to harass the island by constantly breaking through its dykes, but recently it has resorted to a scoundrel form of warfare. It is gradually withdrawing the once abundant supply of fish, the island's main support.

The Catbird.

I hardly know whether I am more pleased or annoyed by the catbird. Perhaps she is a little too common, and her part in the general chorus a little too conspicuous. If you are listening for the note of another bird, she is sure to be prompted to the most loud and protracted singing, drowning all other sounds; if you sit quietly down to observe a favorite or study a newcomer, her curiosity knows no bounds, and you are scanned and ridiculed from every point of observation. Yet I would not miss her; I would only subordinate her a little, make her less conspicuous.—John Burroughs.

The world has taken to rolling so rapidly of late that the most interesting things occur and are finished up and forgotten before we have time to observe and remember them. Great events flash by, like country stations seen from the last platform of an express train. Unless we stand ready, as the astronomers do, before an eclipse of the sun, we may find ourselves in a new epoch without having obtained even a kodak snapshot of the Day of Judgment.—John Jay Chapman.

Pooling the Cost.

Kathryn—"What a lovely engagement ring! Your fiancé must be rich to afford so big a stone." Kitty—"Rather. You see, I was engaged to five men this season and I persuaded them to go in together on a syndicate ring. I hate a lot of little ones."

PREPARING TO CHECK SPREAD OF NOXIOUS WEEDS

Immediate steps to get the people of the state acquainted with the dangerous character of a number of the weeds growing in Pennsylvania, and to head off new ones which have been brought here from other states through scattering of seeds during transportation or otherwise, will be taken by the State Department of Agriculture. Another Pennsylvania plan is to establish a uniform seed inspection law, which will be discussed the latter part of the year and be submitted to the Pennsylvania Legislature along with the new weed extermination law during the winter.

There are numerous Georgians now attempting to console themselves with the reflection that a State is not judged altogether by the United States Senators it chooses. But it don't like the League of Nations.

Honesty.
Honesty is not the best policy. It isn't any kind of policy. It's a virtue practiced for its own sake without regard for profits. Those who refrain from stealing because thieves end in jail are not honest. They are merely G-men.—Robert Quillen in Saturday Evening Post.

PROMOTION SERVICES HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

The Rally Day and Promotion exercises held Sunday in the Washington Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school were largely attended and enjoyed. The platform on the Sunday school room was decorated and fenced with lattice work. The gates and all the lattice work were covered with a tangle of green. The adjacent end of the stage was a blaze of glory, being festooned with flags and banners of the different departments. Five classes in the Sunday school were promoted and received diplomas from the Superintendent, Dr. F. C. Stahlman. A pleasing feature was the rose buds given to the beginners by Miss Grace Geider. The Sunday school room overflowed into the primary room and a large number of people were compelled to stand throughout the exercises. The goal had been set for 400 present. When the tabulation was made it was found there were 425 present and the offering was $42.14. Bouquets were given to the oldest and youngest persons present. Robert Booth, aged 74 and James Henry Stephenson, aged seven months, received them. The music, under direction of John F. Production of soft coal during the week ending September 18, according to a report issued last week by the U. S. Geological Survey was the largest with one exception since January. Because of the continued "vacation strike" in the hard coal region, the total production of hard and soft coal combined was much below the average of August. The output of soft coal for the week ending September 18 was 11,614,000 net tons.

HAS ADMIRATION OF WORLD

Capitol at Washington Recognized As the Finest and Noblest Building on the Earth.

Foundations for the central structure of the present capitol in Washington were finished on August 24, 1913. The old capitol had only two wings, connected by a covered wooden bridge, which was destroyed and the wings damaged by the British, who set fire to the building in 1814. Three years later congress voted to remove the wings and build the new central structure, which with its dome was completed in 1829.

The two great marble extension wings in which the senate and house of representatives meet were begun in 1851 and completed for occupancy in 1859. The old dome, made of wood and brick, was torn away in 1855, and the present dome completed in 1864. The great statue of the goddess of freedom, which rests upon the dome, was designed by Thomas Crawford, father of Marion Crawford, novelist. Charles Bulfinch of Boston was the architect of the original central structure and Thomas U. Walter designed the marble extensions and the present dome. He was a Philadelphian.

The total cost of the present capitol was about $16,000,000, and it has been pronounced by architectural authorities, both in America and Europe, to be the greatest and noblest building in the world.—Chicago Journal.

KNOWS NOW HOW IT FEELS

Dentist, Given Emergency Toothache Treatment, Dreads Further Ordeal of a Session in the Chair.

A haggard-faced man rushed into the Park Emergency hospital shortly after 3 o'clock a few mornings ago.

"For the love of mud will you give me something to stop a raving toothache? It's had me up all night, and I've tried everything," he moaned to the steward in attendance.

The steward made the pain-ridden patient comfortable in a chair and then applied soothing remedies to the offending molar.

"Why, the pain's gone," the patient exclaimed after a while.

"Well, that tooth won't bother you any more for a while, but you had better see a dentist in the morning," said the steward.

"Guess I'll have to," said the patient gloomily.

"Everybody hates to go to a dentist," remarked the steward. "Will you give me your name for our records?"

"Yes," said the patient. "I am Dr. A. Karageorge."

"Are you a physician?" asked the steward.

"No, I'm a dentist," smiled the patient. "I have cured scores and scores of aching teeth, but this one of mine sure unnerved me. Guess I'll have to go to a dentist in the morning. Gee, I hate to!"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Hearing of Butterflies.

The hearing of certain butterflies, the moths and the spiders has been a subject of much study by E. Eggers, whose results have been reported in a Berlin zoological annual. The seat of hearing is found to be the "tympanal organ" of the last ring of the thorax. The air-filled vesicle or bladder of this organ adjoins two very thin spots in the external chitin, and one of these is the true drumhead, connected with a nerve strand having two sensory cells while the other, the so-called opposite drumhead, seems to serve as a sounding board to reinforce vibrations. Experiments with crickets have shown that the chirping of the male is heard only by females having the tympanal organ intact. The organ of the butterflies, which is more sensitive, cannot be tested in the same way, but response has been had to very high, shrill tones, such as that made by rubbing a cork against a wet glass and in one species to a clattering sound made by the wings of the male. Butterflies flying by day seem to have hearing organs more generally than those that are active at night.

Snap Eruption Ten Yards Away.

An unvarying but fruitful incident occurred recently as the volcano of Kilauea, H. I., described as the most continuously active in the world, was being examined by scientists of the Hawaiian Volcano Research association. At the climax of this expedition they had determined to photograph a towering crag of solidified lava that rises, Gibraltarlike, from the surface of a swelling, overcrusted lava lake, declares an illustrated article in Popular Mechanics Magazine. But at the instant the cameraman was squeezing the bulb, an explosion within the uneasy mass threw into the air, not ten yards from the party, and directly before the lens of the camera, a tumbling mass of white hot lava. Crashing back, and so braving the surface crust, these erupted fragments roused the entire lake into a "seething, bellying mass of fountains."

The Whitewashers.

Representative Frear was talking about a committee with a notorious record for whitewashing. "That committee," he said, "ought to go out to Los Angeles and start up in the moving picture business. They'd certainly have a grand success." "Why?" asked the puzzled reporter. "Why do you say that, congressman?" "It stands to reason they'd have a grand success," answered Mr. Frear. "Look how beautifully they screened Dush last month."

HAD QUEER MENTAL STREAK

Stories Told of Oliver Cromwell Would Lead One to Doubt His Complete Sanity.

If Oliver Cromwell had lived in these days a committee of alienists doubtless would have investigated his sanity before now. For the Protector had a most abnormal streak in his mental make-up. Fancy a man that could sign the death warrant of a king and then turn and spatter the ink from his pen into the face of a friend. In his youth taverns were the chief resort of Cromwell. His raw and boisterous behavior early estranged him from his equals and he came to associate with a class beneath him. For he could brook no interference or contradiction. The matter of the score at the inns where he caroused concerned him very little; the bills frequently went unpaid and he became extremely unpopular with the alewives of Huntingdon who, when they saw him coming, would lock the doors to keep out the noisy bully. So Oliver turned out to be a wild and dissipated youth. The same incorrigible spirit ran throughout his life. It led him to encourage his soldiers to play practical jokes upon each other, such as putting hot coals in the other fellow's boots. At the marriage of his daughter in 1657 to Rich, the Protector or drew sack posset among the ladies to soil their rich clothes, which they took as a favor from him, strange as it may seem. And he put sticky candy upon the chairs where his guests were to sit, and pulled off his son-in-law's peruke, pretended to throw it into the fire, and ended by sitting on it.—Philadelphia Record.

OBJECT TO MENIAL DUTIES

Reason That Is Assigned for the Present Scarcity of Trained Nurses in Hospitals.

The full utility of many hospitals is now impaired by a lack of nurses writes "Guard" in the Philadelphia Press.

Howard Butler, Jr., is trustee of an important hospital here and he tells me they need 30 per cent more nurses than they can get.

"Why are nurses so scarce?" I asked.

"I presume," answered Mr. Butler, whose business, as you know, is that of a banker and broker, "it is because girls think they can earn more money in an easier way in some other occupation."

I have talked with doctors of wide hospital experience about it and they say that the old practice of making girls in training for nurses do drudgery for a year or so has prevented many young women from entering the profession.

"What good?" said one great surgeon. "Did it do to a nurse's skill to make her scrub floors or wash windows? As well make medical students polish shoes, keep up the furnace fires and sweep out the lecture rooms."

Another physician of long experience and who is connected with a big hospital, added:

"The hospitals will be obliged to cut out the manual labor for training nurses and will probably reduce the years of training, or the country will go back to the conditions when it had few or no trained nurses."

He Made Eugenie Weep.

An old singer living in England, M. L. Albani Cye, recalls an incident which indicates how heavily the late Empress Eugenie bore her many sorrows.

"Many years ago I used to take my holiday on Deeside," he writes the Daily Telegraph "and once at least every season was called to Balmoral to sing before Queen Victoria. On one of these occasions the empress, who was on a visit at the castle, came with the queen to hear me. I believe that she had not heard any music since the death of the emperor, and I had scarcely finished my first song when she burst out crying. The queen, on seeing this, began to cry also, and I, too, from sympathy, I presume, with the two great ladies, could hardly restrain my tears. I, however, very soon recovered my composure and was able to continue my work."

Gardens of Ashes.

The town of Sheephead Bay some years ago entered into an arrangement with the borough of Brooklyn whereby the contents of all the Brooklyn ash barrels were delivered for the filling in of a great swamp.

The refuse, reaching Sheephead Bay in large metal tanks, was carried out into the swamp by specially constructed trolleys and dumped. In this way some hundreds of acres were converted into dry land.

The refuse contained so much vegetable and animal matter that almost immediately grass and sunflowers began to grow on the surface of the material, and by the end of the second year thrifty Italians had planted most of the area with cabbage and other vegetables. The ash dump became a truck garden.

Timber From Dead Trees.

Some prejudice exists against the use of timber cut from dead trees, says the American Forestry Magazine. As a matter of fact when sound dead trees are sawed into lumber, and the weathered or charred outside is cut away, there is no method known to the forest products laboratory by which the lumber can be distinguished from that cut from live trees, except that the lumber from dead trees may be partly seasoned when sawed.
